

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A liquid crystal display device and fabricating method, wherein at least two storage capacitors disposed between the gate line and the capacitor electrode making the same potential as the gate line are provided, whereby the capacitance of the entire storage capacitor is enlarged due to a parallel connection of the storage capacitors, so that flicker and cross talk can be reduced to improve picture quality.